11. CORPORATE GOVERNANCE

A separate report on corporate governance along with the Auditors' certificate on its Compliance is attached to this report.

12. MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS REPORT:

Management Discussion and Analysis Report has been included in adherence to the Exchange spirit enunciated in the code of corporate governance approved by the Securities and Exchange Board of India. Management presents herein the industry overview, opportunities and threats, initiatives by the Company and its overall strategy for the future. This outlook is based on the assessment of current business environment, which may vary due to the future economic and other developments both in India and abroad.

(A) Industry Structure and Development:

Refractory is a kind of material which is produced from non-metallic minerals. It is a basic material used in the internal lining of industrial furnaces and possess capability to withstand heat and pressure. They are used in steel, aluminum, glass, cement, petrochemicals, non-ferrous metals, thermal power plants and ceramic industries. It has a wide product range and comprehensive to suit the requirement of different industry segments. These are produced in Special Shapes and are Custom made to suit the requirements of the various industries.

The growth of the Indian steel sector is extremely crucial to analyze the future status of Indian refractory makers. The boom in the Indian steel sector may see a boom in yet another industry, that of refractories.

The size of the Indian Refractory industry is estimated at Rs 4,000 crores and it is stated to be growing at 10-12 per cent annually. The Indian refractory comprises over 100 established units, with 11 large, 24 medium and the rest small-scale plants. Currently, the aggregate production capacity of the industry is two million tonnes, with average 60 per cent capacity utilization. About 75 per cent of the refractories produced find application in the steel industry, another 12 per cent in cement, five to six per cent in non-ferrous industry, about three per cent in glass industry and the balance in other industry. The import increased from Rs 983 crores in 2007-08 to Rs 1,441 crore in 2008-09. The exports during the same period increased from Rs 419 crores to Rs 522 crores.

(B) Opportunities and threatsOpportunities in the refractories industry:

There is a good opportunity for Indian refractory makers to augment their export as China has stopped refund of Value Added Tax (VAT) on refractory exports, which is almost 17 percent. Indian refractories are thus becoming more and more competitive. There is increasing scope for exports. Currently, India exports around 10 percent of its production. But in the existing scenario, this could double in the next three years. It is worth mentioning, that these markets are very particular about the consistency of the quality and their renewed confidence is a signal that assures the quality of Indian products. India is having superior engineering skill, high quality technology and equipment from Germany and Italy, access to superior quality raw materials and all these factors is resulting in superior quality refractory output.

There are opportunities for Refractories in various sectors like monolithic & special products that would dominate the production in future. The best growth opportunities still lie in the less traditional end uses, such as waste-to-energy generation and restaurants. However due to the small size of these markets it has a minimal impact on aggregate refractory demand. Refractory demand from other sectors is rising, apart from steel, demand is rising from sponge iron and cement units too.

Threats in the refractories industry:

One of the major threats the industry is facing is from China which is adversely affecting the exports. China has access to cheap but quality raw materials required in manufacturing of refractories. Even most of the plants get tax benefits as several of them are located in special economic zones. The Indian refractory manufacturers are squeezed between the raw material suppliers and steel makers. The negotiating power of refractories makers is very poor, mainly due to its size, as it is catering to an industry far bigger in size, primarily steel. In general, it can be said that all these improvements have resulted in lowering specific consumption of refractories per tonne of steel.

Another major challenge is marketing and packaging. Indian players must focus on better, competitive and customized or tailor-made products for their clients. India is gaining significant reputation in the international market, mainly Europe and the US. Refractory manufacturers should realize that there is no unique refractory solution in steel production. Different types of steel production require different type of refractories. Moreover, wearing rate of refractory depends on several factors including time of exposure, temperature, degree and fluctuation of temperature. All these need to be kept in mind while supplying refractory for optimal utilization.

Paucity of raw materials is a problem for refractory makers across the globe. With the changes in technology in the steel industry, the major thrust has been on maximizing on the use of the materials and improving technology in each area of operation/process where refractories are being used.

(C) Segment or Product wise Performance:

Your company operates in only one business segment and one product viz., refractories. A brief of the different types of refractories manufactured by the company is given below:

Fire Clay: This is a low alumina refractory product and is manufactured by both small and big refractory plants beside many un-organized units. Hence the market for this product is highly competitive. The price of this product is low and does not require much technology. The company has a good brand image in this segment. During the year under review, this product account nearly 48% the total sales of the company.

High Alumina: High Refractoriness increases with increasing alumina content. These bricks have high Mechanical strength and excellent load-bearing properties at high temperatures besides having fair to excellent resistance to spalling. These High Alumina Bricks have high resistance to corrosion by many basic slags and fluxes and fair resistance to acid slags. These High Alumina Bricks are suitable for Cement Rotary Kilns, Ladle Lining, Glass Industries, Blast furnaces Stoves & Checkers. Electric Furnace Roof & Other miscellaneous industries.

The company has a good brand image in this segment and has performed well at Integrated Steel Plant last year as a result of which it has received additional orders for the current year and is one of the major suppliers to RINL, JSW, TRL & SAIL Units. The Company has recently developed new products in this range for exports. During the year under review, this product has accounted nearly 20% of the total sales of the company.

Basic: This is a basic refractory product and comprises of Mag Carbon and Magnesite bricks. The company has good performance record in this category. The company has executed order in SAIL Units & RINL and has reasonable chances for improving its market share for this product. During the year under review, this product has accounted nearly 10% of the total sales of the company.

Silica: This is a quartzite based silica refractory product and is highly technology oriented. In India only two major units are into manufacturing this product. The company has stabilized the production process and has successfully executed the order from VSP. This year the company plans to enter into the coke oven sector of silica bricks and also manufacture dense and super dense quality for glass industry. The company is also expecting growth in exports. The company enjoys geographical advantage for procurement of raw material for manufacture of silica bricks. During the year under review, this product has contributed approx 5% of the total sales.

Monolithics: These refractories are well known to produce joint less structure which are stable from dimensional aspect at high temperatures and are resistant to thermal shock and abrasion. It comprises of castables, plastic mass, ramming mix, mortars, slingor mix and coating material. This is an unfired green refractory material. The quality of product ranges from 30 % to 90% alumina which is being used for varied purpose and applications like Sponge Furnace Kiln, Power Plants etc. Silica Ramming Mass for Induction furnace has been recently introduced in this section. During the year under review, this product has contributed approx 17% of the total sales.

(D) Outlook:

Despite the price of several raw material going up significantly, refractory makers were, till recently, left with little choice but to absorb the shock, resulting in erosion of bottom lines. But the brighter side of the story is increasing credibility of Indians in the global market, where price realization is relatively better.

The Refractory industry is driven by steel industry growth. However, other core sector industry growth too, will be driving refractory demand in future. Usage in industries other than steel - like cement, refractories, petrochemicals, fertilizers, glass and other industries will also drive demand in future. Technological change is also expected to drive demand for certain products.

According to available reports, installed production capacity as on December 2006 was roughly around 20 Lakh tons per annum. Conservatives estimate that it has gone up by around 5 to 10 percent in 2007. Similarly, the production capacity that stood at 10 Lakh tons per annum was estimated to have grown by at least 10 percent in 2007. But it is expected that by 2010, along with the increase in steel production in the country, the demand for refractories will touch 12 Lakh tons annum.

(E) Risks and Concerns:

Being fully reliant on end user industries including steel and aluminum, the Indian refractory industry is currently encompassing the downward cycle. Although this has not effected the growth rate of industry at all, yet it is a matter of great concern. The global economic slow down has effected the local manufacturing sector badly with demand from auto, aviation and railways remains stagnant since the blip of meltdown felt about 12 months ago. Being immune to global industrial development, India's refractory industry has witnessed a dramatic squeeze in margins amidst poor demand from end users and rising raw material prices. Sudden fall in demand is also caused huge inventory pile-ups thereby pressurizing manufacturers to clean up stock piles at price decided by the end-users. The domestic refractory sector is facing severe crunch in quality man power. A major area of concern is availability of adequately qualified and competent workforce. The Industry is facing countless difficulties both in terms of increasing raw-material and other input costs as well as the availability, further the negotiating power of the refractory makers is poor mainly due to their size as it caters to the industries which are far bigger in sizes like aluminum, steel, cement, etc.

(F) Internal control system and their adequacy:

The Company strictly adheres to the internal control systems established over the years. The Company has a policy of maintaining effective internal control system and strict implementation of policies and procedures so as to safe guard the assets and interests of the company. The Company has an audit committee consisting of Independent Directors of the Company. The internal control systems of the Company are implemented with a view to achieve good ethical culture in the organization. The internal control systems of the Company would ensure that any vulnerability in the achievement of the Company's objectives caused by risk factors whether internal or external, existing or emerging, is detected and reported in a timely manner and is meted out with appropriate corrective action. The findings of internal audit are periodically placed before the Audit Committee and the Board of Directors of the Company.

(G) Discussion on financial performance with respect to operational performance:

Your Company has achieved the gross turnover of Rs.3397.08 lakhs as against a turnover of Rs.2957.38 lakhs achieved during the previous financial year. The Company has earned a Net Profit of Rs.18.53 lakhs as against Rs.13.59 lakhs for the year under consideration registering an increase of 36.35% over the previous year.

(H) Material developments in Human Resources / Industrial Relations front, Including number of people employed

It is your Company's belief that the competence and commitment of its people are key drivers of competitive advantage enabling the Company to compete successfully in the market place. As at 31st March, 2010 the company has about 246 employees working in its factory and various offices. Your Company endeavors to strengthen organizational culture in order to attract and retain the best talent and bring out the best in people.
